Washington State University

KICKERS

HANSON AND OREGON STATE LEAD FIELD GOAL LISTS

WSU kickers have booted 35 field goals of 50 yards or longer, including the first one by Joe Danelo, a 50-yarder in 1972 against USC. Jason Hanson, now an NFL star with the Detroit Lions, holds the distinction of having kicked the most field goals 50 yards or longer for Washington State and owns the school record with a 62 yard kick in 1991 at UNLV. Hanson, in his career as both a punter and kicker, earned All-America first team honors three times and academic All-America first team honors three times. While at WSU, 1988-91, Hanson made 18 field goals of 50 yards or longer, including the 62-yarder, which at the time was the longest in NCAA history without the use of a kicking tee. In all, eight Cougar kickers have had at least one field goal of 50 yards or longer. Rian Lindell, who finished up his career in 1999, booted five kicks through the uprights from 50 yards or longer and Aaron Price, youngest son of WSU head coach Mike Price, had three of the magical kicks. Four Cougar kickers had two field goals 50 yards or longer, Paul Watson, Joe Danelo, Tony Truant and Kevin Morris, while Kevin Adams had one long field goal.

Oregon State has been the victim of the most Cougar field goals 50 yards or longer. WSU kickers have booted seven against Oregon State and five against Arizona. Cougar kickers have hit three long field goals each against Stanford and UCLA and two each against Brigham Young,

NO RARITY AT WSU - 50 YARD FIELD GOALS

Jason Hanson, who set the NCAA record for the longest field goal without use of a kicking tee when he booted a 62-yarder at UNLV in 1991, has kicked more field goals of 50 yards or longer than any other Cougar, 18.

Idaho and Fresno State. The other 11 field goals include one each against Pac-10 foes Arizona State, Washington, USC and California and non-conference opponents UNLV, Boise State, Wyoming, Ohio State, Temple, Illinois and Montana State. The only conference opponent WSU has not hit a 50-plus field goal against is Oregon.
